BEST PRACTICE IN THE INDUSTRY

In line with security industry's best practices, to help you evaluate and plan the security of your organisation, LifeForce Security has compiled a list of best practices for securing an enterprise and business. The list is not meant to replace a full security assessment of your infrastructure, obviously it is intended to point out a number of key elements that LifeForce Security identified as an area for evaluation after the wealth of experience we have in all arms of the security industry and these fall into the following categories:

Assessing Your Business

In order to effectively secure your business, you must first be familiar with or understand your sector, by doing this identifying all assets and security issues, but also monitoring the quality of your overall security risk.

Protecting Your Business

You should make sure that you take adequate measures to help protect your assets, staff and customers in your premises.

Protecting Your Clients

Make your environment a safe place. With LifeForce Security you will enjoy peace of mind in a risk free environment.

Monitoring Your Environment

Monitoring and auditing are central to an organisation's security efforts. We often think of Monitoring as watching and waiting for an event to occur so that we can react to the situation. While this is important, a secure environment should establish a proactive strategy that audits your business on a continual basis.
